Counterfeit arrest made

Police bust suspect trying to pass $100 bill

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

An East St. Louis man was arrested Monday afternoon after allegedly trying to pass a phony $100 bill at a Madison fast-food restaur-rant. The case has been turned over to the U.S. Secret Service and is expected to go before a federal grand jury in East St. Louis within a month or so.

After taking the suspect into custody, police found $2,640 in counterfeit $20 and $100 bills hidden in the bathroom of the Madison Dairy Queen, located at 665 McCambridge.

According to reports, an officer was sent to the restaurant after a manager reported someone trying to pass a fake $100 bill. Workers said the man came in and ordered two double cheeseburgers, then tried to pay with a $100 bill. When the cashier questioned the money, the man told her to forget about it and paid with a real $5 bill. A manager told the man that they would have to contact the police.

When police arrived, the man was coming out of the restroom where the rest of the money was found in a small paper bag.

A passenger in the man's truck, a Madison woman who later admitted to police that she was a prostitute working out of an East St. Louis hotel, told police she had no idea the suspect was passing counterfeit money. She was allowed to leave.

The suspect was taken into custody, but later released.

Business owner seeks street development

Economic meeting discusses possible paving project grants

Fred Khani is the owner of Dynamic Transit in Granite City. He would also like to be the owner of a Granite

GRANITE CITY

City convenience store. Khani would like the store to be constructed next to his business at 3153 West Chain of Rocks Road.

Khani was at a recent Granite City Economic Development meeting speaking with city officials about the feasibility of the store and about a street he would like to see paved at the corner of 20th Street and Illinois Route 3. Khani said the proposed street would give customers easy access to the would-be store.

According to Dan Brown, director of economic development for Granite City, the city is looking into grants that would help finance the street project that would cost about $80,000.

"There are different avenues to take," Brown said. "We need to look into those that are economically viable for this type of project."

"If we have the resources or the capabilities to allot the funds and I believe we do, we should follow through with this because this is something that will be beneficial to the city."

Second Ward Alderman

Second Ward Alderman Jim Miller was one of a handful of aldermen in favor of the project.

"If we have the resources or the capabilities to allot the funds and I believe we do, we should follow through with this because this is something that will be beneficial to the city," Miller said.

Granite City Mayor Ron Selp agreed, saying, "We are not setting a precedence. We have done this before."

Doing your best is what sport is about

Winning, losing should not be focus of school athletics

By Dr. Tom Fegley

I would like to share a personal story that to me, epitomizes what athletics is all about. Our daughter wasn't much of an athlete. She was more into music, and she was very good at that, as she played the piano, cornet, violin, organ and sang. But when she entered high school, she wanted to be on the swimming team. She has participated in the junior lifesaving program and enjoyed swimming, so she thought she could compete in swimming.

As dutiful parents, we went to each of her swimming meets and watched her participate, even though she never did very well. She swam on the freshman/sophomore team, and I don't think she ever won a race, but she tried hard. She never missed practice and always entered each swim meet with a positive attitude. She worked hard, but her time in the breaststroke always stayed about the same. Her sophomore year was about the same; her times didn't improve from her freshman year. She was doing about as well as she could.

I hope the lesson our students learn from athletics is this: "If I work hard and do my best, I cannot do any more..."

One day, one of the varsity swimmers was ill, so there was a spot on the varsity squad for someone to swim the breaststroke. The coach asked Jennifer to swim it. She was so excited, but she was a nervous wreck. She had the opportunity, and she wanted to do so well.

My wife and I were concerned because we knew she couldn't be competitive in that setting. We were afraid that if she didn't do well, her disappointment would discourage her from further competition.

Time came for the race to start. Jennifer was pacing and biting her nails as she always did before she did something big, whether it was a major piano contest or a swimming race. The gun sounded, and Jennifer got off the starting block well, but she immediately started to fall behind the other swimmers.

As the race progressed, Jennifer's teammates stood at the poolside cheering her on and giving her encouragement. Within a few paces, it was obvious that Jennifer was not going to be able to keep her right through to the end of the race. However, her teammates kept cheering and encouraging her right through to the end of the race.

She had to swim four laps, and by the end of the race, all of the other swimmers had finished well ahead of her. In fact, she swam most of the last lap after others had finished. As she finished, Jennifer immediately looked up at the clock and saw she had completed her swim faster than she had ever swam it before. Her teammates realized this was her best time, and they were all cheering and celebrating her triumph. Jennifer had a big smile on her face and her teammates were hugging her and congratulating her. You would have thought she had won the race rather than come in dead last.

As a tear came to my eye and my chest swelled with pride, I thought, "This is what high school athletics should be all about." It shouldn't be all about winning and losing; it should be about improving and doing your best. That afternoon Jennifer was a winner. She had done her very best. She lost the race, but she couldn't have done any better. That is cause for celebration.

I hope the lesson our students learn from participating in athletics is this: "If I work hard and do my best, I cannot do any more. It doesn't matter if I am first or second or last as long as I have done my best and have worked hard to reach my highest potential. I cannot be better than my best, and if that doesn't allow me to be number one, that's OK, because I can take pride that I am doing all that I can do."

That is what it is all about.

Everything's on hold until Heiple acts

Controversial Supreme Court justice has GOP, Dems on pins and needles

By Kurt Erickson

Those rustling and crunching sounds coming out of west-central Illinois aren't just the echoes of autumn leaves blowing around in the cool November wind.

Rather, Democrats in the region are stomping around and getting all riled up and given election year is just around the corner, it should come as no surprise to find out who is the source of the acrimony.

Here's a quiz: Who was one of the most controversial political figures in Illinois during the 1990s?

Tick. Tick. Tick. Here's a more precise clue: What Illinois judge was recently listed as one of the Top Ten Worst Judges in the United States?

Tick. Tick. Tick. If you said, "Illinois Supreme Court Justice James Heiple," you win a bound copy of the Baby Richard adoption decision.

What's got the Dems upset is that Heiple, a Republican, won't say whether he'll run for reelection on the high court next year or retire at the age of 66. Led by Rock Island County Democratic Chairman John Giamulis, Democrats say Heiple should announce his plans, so in case he decides to retire, others can begin preparing to run for his seat.

"Heiple should be upfront about this," Giamulis says. "We want him to fess up about what he wants to do."

State Sen. Patrick Welch (D-Peru) is among those thinking about running for the high court. But, as he told us, he can't make a move until Heiple makes his intentions known.

Other Democrats showing interest include state appeals court judges Tom Homer and Peg Breslin.

Republicans prepping for a run include state Sen. Carl Hawkinson (R-Galesburg) and 3rd District Appellate Court Justice William Holdridge. All the while, Heiple, showing his well-known propensity for not bowing to public pressure, has remained silent on the matter. A Supreme Court spokesman said a decision will come Dec. 6, which happens to be the last possible day a decision can be made.

We've got an idea of what he'll do, but first let's take a look back at the man who has been a lightning rod for criticism through much of the 1990s.

Maybe you remember the sensational newsreel of a youngster being pried out of his adoptive mother's arms and whisked away from the only home he knew.

Heiple was the author of the court decision that ultimately led to the tearful TV footage. Even though his colleagues on the high court had unanimously agreed with the Baby Richard decision, Heiple was the one singled out and berated by Gov. Jim Edgar during an unprecedented departure from his 1997 State of the State address.

Countless news releases criticizing Heiple also came out of Lt. Gov. Bob Kustra's office. State lawmakers, including the late state Sen. Penny Severns (D-Decatur) were heavily critical of the ruling and, in turn, Heiple. So, it was with a certain amount of barely shrouded glee that Heiple was brought before the legislature for having behaved badly.

With Heiple under fire for trying to use his judicial position to slither out of at least four speeding tickets, a rare call to impeach a statewide official went out. Hearings seeking to determine whether Heiple should get the boot, held the spring of 1997, were high drama.

When all was said and done, however, the first paragraph of an Associated Press dispatch issued in May 1997 read, "Illinois Supreme Court Justice James Heiple dodged a potentially career-ending bullet Thursday, as a House panel turned down efforts to impeach him for repeatedly trying to duck traffic tickets."

Though we have our own thoughts on whether he'll run for reelection next year, Illinoisans should be prepared for a savvy campaign if he does. In the midst of his impeachment troubles, Heiple hired a high-profile and, presumably, high-priced public relations firm to represent him.

In a slick stroke of Statehouse genius, he also conscripted former Gov. Jim Thompson to represent him during the impeachment hearings. Big Jim's antidote to Heiple's prickly demeanor.

Just as Edgar, Kustra and other had used their bully pulpit to lash out at Heiple, Illinois media outlets were besieged by press releases from all sorts of legal notables who lined up on Heiple's side, calling the hearings a witch hunt and a potential breach of the separation of powers of the executive, legislative and judicial branches. I, for the record, am still considering filing a suit in small claims court to recoup the costs of all of the fax paper his PR firm used in his media campaign.

If he does opt to run, be prepared for the spin doctors. We're guessing, however, that he won't.

At the height of his troubles, with Heiple facing his peers before the Illinois Courts Commission in a hearing at a Holiday Inn in Collinsville, Heiple offered himself up to the press for questions. In that long, rare and rambling interview, Heiple said that his pension was locked in at a set level when he turned 60 in September 1993. In effect, he said that he could quit right then and there and not affect the amount he'd receive from his taxpayer-funded pension.

In other words, he implied that his work on the high court was pro bono, not withstanding his annual salary of $100,000-plus.

More importantly, however, in a statement possibly indicating that he had no plans to continue after his 10-term ends in 2000, Heiple remarked, "I mean to serve out my term."

The hints that he might not run for reelection didn't stop there. On May 2, 1997, on the day he resigned his position as chief justice after he'd been censured by the Illinois Courts Commission, Heiple wrote a letter to his colleagues, saying, "I intend to serve the balance."

Counterfeit arrest made

The case is now being handled by the U.S. Secret Service in Springfield.

Resident agent-in-charge Jack Fox said the case was one of several they were working on in the Madison-St. Clair county area, and would probably be presented to a federal grand jury in East St. Louis within a month.

While he would not comment further on that case, Fox said they were seeing an increase in counterfeiting using computer technology. In the past five years, he said the number of counterfeiting cases involving computer technology has grown nationwide to 571 from 21. "What has happened is that it is the method of choice," he said. "Anyone can for a year. A permanent circuit judge is to be elected in the March primary. "I am honored," Callis said.

She said the appointment is a sign of progress for women and their accomplishments. "It is the policy of the court to appoint the person most able for the position and I think we did that again this time," Harrison said.

Judge Callis is well-respected by lawyers who have appeared before her and by her peers on the bench. She has a reputation for being a very hard-working, energetic and knowledgeable judge.

Callis earned a law degree in 1990 from Saint Louis University, where she also earned her bachelor's degree.

She has been an associate judge since 1995 and has served in several court divisions. She has presided over a variety of cases, including major felony trials.

Callis is assigned to the civil division and assists in felony cases when needed. She presided in the murder trial earlier this month of Greg Greer of Alton.

As a senior in law school, she was a clerk for the late Illinois Supreme Court Justice Horace Calvo.

She also served as an assistant state's attorney in St. Clair County and Madison County. She was an associate in the law firm of Bruce Cook and later at the Callis Law firm founded by her father, Lance Callis, a prominent and politically influential lawyer based in Granite City.

While an undergraduate, Ann Callis interned at the Missouri Public Interest Research Group, assisting on investigations involving Superfund litigation, and for U.S. Rep. Richard Gephardt (D-Missouri).

Harrison said Callis was chosen carefully from a number of candidates and that no favoritism was involved in her selection, despite whatever political influence her father might wield.

"She is highly qualified, and she can't help who her father is," he said.

Other courthouse sources said some of the other associate judges in the circuit might have been offended by her appointment, but the judges contacted after her appointment said they think Callis is a qualified judge and that they are happy for her.

Chief Circuit Judge Andy Matosian said Callis is "an excellent judge."

"She will do an outstanding job," he said. "She works very, very hard and that's what we need, a good, hard-working judge."

Keshner died unexpectedly Nov. 6, possibly of an aneurysm. He presided over a large proportion of the county's major felony cases.

Legion visits veterans home

Members of the 22nd District American Legion and Auxiliary recently traveled to Anna Veterans Home in Anna. Party activities include carnival-type poker and bingo. Refreshments served were ice cream, homemade cookies and soda. Candy and snack cracker favors were given all. Twenty handmade afghans were also presented.

Chairman was Mike Murphree, District VA and R chairman from East St. Louis Unit. Maxine Cress, district commander from Belleville, were present. Youth shows in conference opener

Wallace is cornerstone for inexperienced Warriors

By Rick Broome
Staff writer

Southpaw Jessica Wallace has come out of the corral with both barrels blazing.

GIRLS BASKETBALL

The senior gunslinger for the Granite City girls basketball team has entered her fourth year on the varsity squad.

"Other teams have been trying to take her out of the game for three years now, and she still finds a way to get her points," Granite City coach John Moad said. "She is one of the top players in the area, no question. You look in a crowd and she comes out of nowhere with the ball."

"She has extended her range a little bit this year compared to the first couple of years. She is a threat anywhere on the court now. We put her at guard, we put her at small forward. Anywhere we put her, there is no complaining. She goes out and plays. I don't know where we would be without her."

"I try to run off the screens that teammates set for me," Wallace said. "I take one way and try to get around them. If not, I just set a screen for somebody else to get open."

With leaders like Debra Aaron and Jan Shanafelt lost to graduation, Wallace has been forced to pick up even more of the offensive slack for a young team. Opponents know this, and go into games against Granite looking to douse the fire from that hot, notorious left hand.

"I feel bad for her because we are going to take our lumps," Moad said. "Teams are going to try and just take her out of the game. But she has been excellent. She has a great attitude, she works hard, she is definitely our leader. We want her to shoot 20 times a game, and when she does, we are effective."

"We knew we were going to be young this year. It's a little bit disappointing because we would have thought that we would be further along than we are. But right now we are kind of spinning our wheels. But when Jess has a good game, we are going to be there. When she doesn't, we are going to struggle. That is going to be obvious this year, and teams are going to try to take her out."

Wallace knew the expectations would be high for her this year.

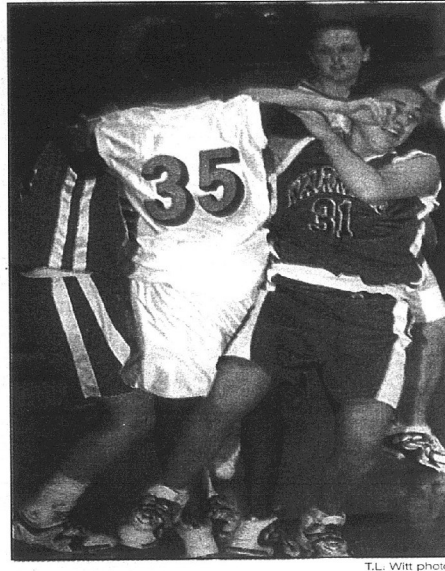

"I thought my role was to lead everybody because this is my fourth year playing."

Wallace said. "I thought that I had the most experience so I had to lead everybody and help the younger kids out. I have to be the leader on and off the court."

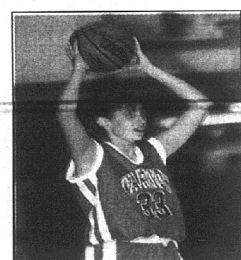

"The young kids are really good. They are just a little nervous because they are not used to playing varsity. Hopefully as the season goes by we will be doing a little better."

Granite has started the season a disappointing 2-5. But Wallace will help steady the group as the freshmen and sophomores grow into their roles.

"I think it is just a matter of waiting for the younger girls to get used to playing varsity," Wallace said. "A lot of them haven't played varsity before. Once they get used to it, we should be all right."

Turnovers hurt CCHS in 65-38 defeat to Lancers

By Rick Broome
Staff writer

Granite City literally let the 1999-2000 Southwestern Conference opener slip through its hands.

GIRLS BASKETBALL

The Warriors committed 37 turnovers en route to a 65-38 loss to Belleville East Tuesday night. The Lancers jumped out early, leading 17-4 after the first quarter and 29-10 at the half.

"This is just our second game, and we wanted to try and work on some things," Belleville East coach Paul James said. "We wanted to try and jump on them early and see if we could take advantage of our team quickness. We wanted to see if we could get some turnovers and capitalize on those."

"We started a little bit slow, but all of a sudden, we had a nice little spurt, and it jumped up. I was pleased overall tonight. We played unselfish."

"They are a very good team," Granite City coach John Moad said. "They are going to compete for the Southwestern Conference title, no question. We are playing some young girls in key positions, and we are going to take some lumps. We see flashes here and there of what we can do, but we just aren't real consistent right now. Hopefully that will come."

Chris Daco led the 1-1 Lancers with 21 points, including seven in the third quarter when East put the game away.

"I was able to play all 11 kids tonight, and we don't fall off too much from one to 11," James said. "It's just a matter of getting some time in and getting some combinations working. We have a pretty good group. We just need to get some games in. We have four this week, so we had to play everybody tonight just to keep the legs fresh. We have our hands full."

East begins that stretch with Mount Vernon today at home before heading to Alton on Friday. Senior Jessica Wallace led the Warriors with 11 points. Sophomore Erin Tyler punched in eight for Granite, who fell to 2-5 on the season.

"We know that we have one real consistent player in Jessica Wallace and we try to get her the ball as much as possible," Moad said. "Her shot wasn't falling early. We have to have our young girls stay disciplined and run our plays, run our offense, and we didn't really do that tonight. We kind of got out of that. We are not going to give up on them. We are going to sink or swim with them."

Granite City will face Edwardsville today.

"They will be real tough," Moad said. "Edwardsville always seems to come out and be real aggressive and get in your face and try to bury you early. We have to be ready for that. We have to match their intensity, which is something we haven't done. We have been a very slow-starting team this year, and that's a little different from last year."

"This team is just a little slow getting out of the blocks. We are searching for our leaders right now. Some of the young players feel that it isn't their place to stand up and we are begging them to. We have some tremendous athletes out there and we just have to play smarter basketball. Every time we run one of our plays correctly we have a wide-open shot."

Kahoks preparing for battle with East St. Louis

Collinsville searches for way to slow down Miles

By Brian Bretsch
Staff writer

Is Darius Miles serious? The East St. Louis senior has made a habit of telling reporters that teammate Phillip Gilbert is the best player on the Flyers basketball team.

Meanwhile, basketball experts around the country are listing Miles among the very best in the nation. The 6-foot-9 post player recently signed a letter of intent to attend St. John's University in New York City, but that doesn't stop the speculation of where he might go in the NBA Draft.

Miles and Gilbert lead East St. Louis (2-1) into Collinsville 8 p.m. Friday for a Southwestern Conference showdown with the Kahoks (2-1).

The Flyers have a new addition this season in guard DeMarco Smith, who transferred to East St. Louis from Belleville West.

"I think he definitely helps them," Collinsville coach Bob Bone said. "He is a very good player and it just gives them something else that you have got to worry about and be concerned with in how to guard. He certainly improves their team on paper."

Bone smiled when hearing Miles' comments about Gilbert, which he said after the Flyers' victory in the Collinsville/Schnucks Holiday Classic last year and repeated on the day of his college signing.

"They are two totally different type players, so I can see him saying that," Bone said. "He is real good and Gilbert is real good, too. I can stand him saying that and that's being a good teammate. I guess we'll see who is making $3 million next year."

Miles tormented the Kahoks last season, scoring 51 points in three meetings while adding 22 offensive rebounds, 26 defensive rebounds and 11 blocked shots. Gilbert added 31 points, 22 total rebounds and no blocked shots in those same three games last year.

How are the Kahoks planning to contain Miles? "There are so many variables that I have got to worry more about what my kids are doing, much less what they are doing," Bone said. "He has got the ability to play above everyone in southern Illinois. If he decides he wants to play above us, there is not a whole lot we can do about it."

Kahoks forward Cory Wilson, an NCAA Division I prospect in football, has had some success in slowing up Miles. Wilson, 6-4 and 240 pounds, tries filling the paint and banging on Miles, who weighs around 180 pounds.

"Cory has got to play the same all the time," Bone said. "He has got to use his strength to his advantage. He has got to play hard. When he does, he causes a lot of people problems. He understands that. Cory knows how he has got to play to be successful."

Ray Price also will be important on the forward line for the Kahoks. The senior scored 37 points in the first two games at the season-opening tournament at Washington (Mo.) St. Francis Borgia before settling for two points against Borgia in the title game. He made the all-tournament team along with Terry Tessary.

Arriola, Miami U. soccer program are victims of school's Title IX decisions

Equality regulations cut down Belleville East graduate's dream of playing for college team

Like many young men who have played soccer most of their lives, Aaron Arriola dreamed of playing soccer in college someday.

His dream came true when he went to Miami University in Oxford, Ohio, after graduating from Belleville East High School in 1996. Arriola received a medical redshirt his freshman year after injuring his back and then had productive seasons in 1997 and '98.

Quite naturally, he was excited heading into the 1999 season after being named one of the team's captains.

Then the sweepster/marketing back received a blow harder than any he had received on the playing field. On Jan. 30, 1999, Miami's president recommended the school cut the men's soccer wrestling, tennis and golf programs so the school would comply with Title IX gender equity regulations. Title IX assures equal opportunity for men and women in college athletics.

Each of the four programs was given a reprieve after the school president's announcement. If they could raise $13 million, the four programs could be saved. If not, they would be gone. In 10 weeks, less than one-third of that total was raised - enough to save the men's golf team.

In April, the athletes in soccer, wrestling and tennis were given notice that the programs were going to be cut.

"There were probably about 60 of us affected," said Arriola, 21. "They had cut our numbers down so there were a proportionate amount of women given the opportunity to play sports at Miami as there were men. About 55 percent of the student body is women and 45 percent men, so the number of women and men athletes had to reflect the enrollment. So, instead of adding women's programs, they took the easy way out and cut the men's programs."

As one of the team's captains, Arriola had the opportunity to speak to the Board of Trustees to express his views about the program's elimination. He said his main points were that many of the soccer players came to Miami in the first place because of the soccer program. Secondly, he said older players would have difficulty leaving the school to transfer to another since they were close to graduation.

"Most of the players who were going to be sophomores or juniors did not transfer, but the older ones like myself stayed at the university," Arriola said. "The soccer coach (Bob Kramig) said he was going to get me some financial aid. By us not playing, it cost me between $5,000 and $6,000."

The good news is that Arriola will graduate in May from Miami with a major in finance and a minor in economics and Spanish. He currently is job hunting and would like to settle in the Chicago area.

Arriola is disillusioned about what transpired at Miami. Soccer, of course, was a big part of his life. He spent as much as 40 to 45 hours per week training, traveling and playing. He was away from the sport for rarely longer than 6 weeks of the year.

"The soccer team was my fraternity," Arriola said. "Those were the guys

I made friends with and hung out with." Arriola believes school officials should have taken a more proactive approach to the problem.

"Title IX has been around since 1972," Arriola said. "They ignored the problem rather than addressing it."

The situation is far from over at Miami. Players from the former men's soccer, wrestling and tennis teams have filed a suit in U.S. District Court in Cincinnati against the university, claiming reverse discrimination.

The athletes accuse Miami of civil rights violations and seek reinstatement of the men's sports. They also want unspecified damages for "the losses they've suffered... shattered dreams and costs such as transferring to other universities," their attorney said.

Arriola is not part of the lawsuit. He does hope soccer and the other programs are reinstated at the university. If they are, Arriola expects the process to take some time.

"The thing that I am trying to convince Ray of is that Ray can play as hard as he wants to. He is a selfish, B.C. kind of player. I believe that and his teammates believe it. He is the only player who is a trouble maker. I think that right now Ray is Ray. He can play at this level and be successful again. I think he is going to come down there or Darius Miles. He has to believe in himself and that is what he is not doing."

"All you have to do is look at the first two games down there. He was 16 out of the 19 from the field. He only missed two shots the first night. He was 16 out of 19 the second night and the third night he goes 0 for 7. He is not a good shooter. I think he didn't believe. We talked after the game and he wasn't convinced. He would like to see a physical problem; it is something we have got to work on more."

The Kahoks are one of the few Metro East teams to frustrate the Hawks. The team is led by coach Bernie Lewis at East St. Louis last season and played in the East St. Louis Open in Lincoln in 1997-98.

"Our styles are different," Boudreau said. "The Hawks do is play a fast-paced game and what we try to do is play half-court. We have a lot of time on the court. I think the game will be

Ford Taurus in NASCAR
By Bill Center and Michael Hembree
The brief, colorful history of the Taurus. Retail price: $29.95.

FROM THE ARCHIVES
Jabe Thomas, from Christiansburg, Va., was once known as NASCAR's Clown Prince. The good-humored Thomas typically drove red-and-gold Plymouths that carried the No. 25. Son Ronnie followed his father in the Winston Cup Series and still is one of the leading short-track drivers in the Commonwealth of Virginia.

It is said that the toughest tickets in NASCAR are the night race at Bristol and the Daytona 500.

Actually, an argument could be made that the toughest ticket to get is an invitation to the Winston Cup Awards banquet, to be held at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York City. This event is virtually impossible for fans to attend.

The good news is that ESPN has expanded its coverage of the annual NASCAR celebration by a half-hour. The Winston Cup banquet will be televised live on Friday, Dec. 3, beginning at 8:30 p.m. EST. Coverage will include the top 10 drivers in the final point standings and the crowning of Dale Jarrett as champion.

Other NASCAR banquets are also scheduled for television coverage, as well. ESPN2 will televise the Craftsman Truck Series banquet from the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco, Calif., on Sunday, Dec. 19, at 1 p.m. EST, with Jack Sprague honored as champion.

THE WINSTON CUP CIRCUIT

PROFILE

Winston Cup Champion

By Monte Dutton

NASCAR This Week

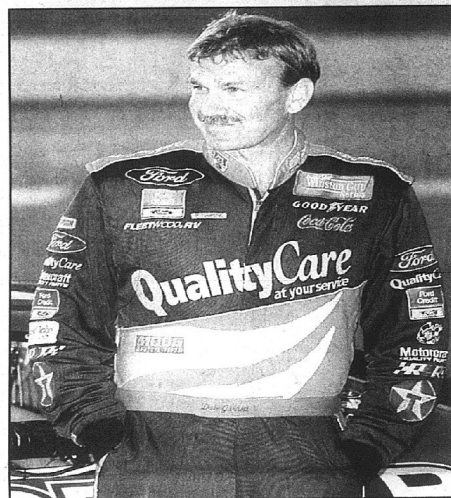

Only one other family, the Pettys, can claim two generations of Winston Cup champions, and the last time such a phenomenon occurred was in 1964, when Richard won his first title and joined father Lee. Now Dale Jarrett, whose father, Ned, won two championships, has put his family at the forefront of the sport's history.

The championship is a first for Jarrett, car owner Robert Yates and crew chief Todd Parrott. Jarrett was runner-up in 1997 and third in 1996 and 1998.

AGE: 43
HOMETOWN: Born in Newton, N.C., resides in Hickory, N.C.
WIFE: Kelley
CHILDREN: Jason (24), Nataliee (11), Kyla (9), Zachary (5 on Dec. 8)
CAR: No. 88 Quality Care/
Ford Credit Ford Taurus, owned by Robert Yates
RECORD: 389 starts, 7 poles, 22 wins, 114 top-five finishes, 167 top-10s, almost $21 million in career earnings

FIRST: Start (April 29, 1984, at Martinsville), pole (Feb. 11, 1995, at Daytona), win (Aug. 18, 1991, at Michigan)
DESCRIBE WHAT THIS CHAMPIONSHIP MEANS: "It was a great experience for me. I hope (former champions) understand that I enjoyed it every bit as much as they did by being able to realize my dream of becoming a Winston Cup champion. If anything comes out of this whole thing as much as Robert Yates getting his first championship as a car owner and Todd (Parrott) getting his first as a crew chief, I hope our story is a little bit of an inspiration to others, that perseverance pays off and (so does) hard work and dedication. I think that's the story that can be told by Todd, Robert and myself."

WHAT TOOK YOU SO LONG? "I guess it seems like a long time, but to me, I don't know that it's been that long. It doesn't seem like 1977 (when he began racing) was that long ago."

Dale Jarrett is the 1999 Winston Cup Champion.

and I think that's part of it. I didn't start in this business until I was 20 years old, knew very little if anything about a race car and certainly didn't know anything about driving one. So I think it's just taken a while and a progression to work my way up the ladder and get myself in other opportunities."

DO YOU HAVE ANY FUNNY STORIES TO RELATE ABOUT PAST BANQUETS? "The only thing, I don't know how funny it is, but the last two years, I've left the check that they give you on the podium. I hope I don't do that with a $2 million check this year. Even though those (others) have been sizeable, hopefully, I can keep my wits about me this time. As a matter of fact, I need to, first off, just put it in my pocket. The TelePrompTers have been good, and everything has gone pretty good with that (giving the speech), but I just seem to leave the money lying around."

Trackside Trivia

1. Who built Darlington Raceway?
2. Who was the first driver to lead a lap of NASCAR competition?
3. Who won that race?

Daytona Beach, Fla., in February, 1948; 3. Red Byron

AROUND THE GARAGE

almost immediately with the help of a brace, he will not climb into a race car until February, and full recovery may take as long as a year.

ADVANCING ON A NEW FRONT: NASCAR is exploring a program designed to put the stock-car governing body in the licensing business on behalf of drivers, teams and sponsors. "One of NASCAR's primary objectives is to maximize opportunities," said Mike Helton of NASCAR. "We are looking at the feasibility of a licensing program that would expand the sport in underdeveloped categories that will create new opportunities for everyone."

It goes without saying that such a program would increase NASCAR's already impressive control of the sport and provide yet another revenue source.

TOGETHER AGAIN: The crew chief who directed Terry Labonte's 1996 championship will be back with the driver next year at Hendrick Motorsports. Gary DeHart will replace Andy Graves on Hendrick's No. 5 banquet will also be televised by ESPN2 on Sunday, Jan. 16, at noon EST. Dale Earnhardt Jr. will be officially crowned at the Regent Beverly Wilshire in Beverly Hills, Calif. Earnhardt Jr., of course, will be a candidate for Winston Cup rookie of the year in 2000, coming on the heels of consecutive BGN titles.

Chevrolet team.

DALLENBACH'S RIGHT-HAND MAN: Wayne Orme, formerly crew chief with Bill Elliott, has apparently agreed to become crew chief with Wally Dallenbach next year at Darwin Oordt's No. 75 team. Another contender for the job had been Richard "Sluggo" Labbe, who worked with Dallenbach during the past season at Hendrick Motorsports. Labbe pulled his name out of consideration at the last minute, according to a published report.

Letters from Our Readers

Dear NASCAR This Week,
(To the author of a letter criticizing Jeff Gordon for having a cap on during the National Anthem):

Sorry, but I think that is immature and rude. Jeff Gordon is a great person and so is his wife, Brooke. I may be 14 years old, but I am expressing my opinion. Jeff Gordon has influenced me on a lot of things in life, and I don't feel like hearing someone criticizing him on one little thing.

Amesha Hankins
Coloma, Mich.

Dear NASCAR This Week,
Does NASCAR employ chaplains or ministers on a full-time basis to minister to NASCAR employees, race-car drivers and personnel?

Rev. Thomas E. Wallace
Lakerville, Ohio

NASCAR does not employ chaplains, but there is an organization called Motor Racing Outreach that provides spiritual support — through church services, day care, even medical treatment — at NASCAR touring-series events.

Dear NASCAR This Week,
Why is it in Winston Cup races that there are 43 cars? Why do race cars always go counterclockwise?

W.E. Moore
Shinnston, W.Va.

There is no special significance to the 43 cars that make up each week's lineup. It wasn't until the last few years that starting fields were standard at all tracks. At one time, the standard starting field at superspeedways was 42, but then an exemption to the provision was added for a driver who met that criterion but did not make the field by other means. In the past two years, the standard size of the field was expanded to 43 regardless of whether there was an exemption or not.

The practice of running counterclockwise dates to the start of American auto racing, but on most road courses, cars do run clockwise.

Fan Tips

Oakland, Calif.-based Edy's Grand Ice Cream, mindful that Jeff Gordon has been eating its product since he was a child, is attempting to come up with a new ice cream flavor in Gordon's honor and wants help from fans. For further information, fans may seek out the company's Web site (www.edys.com). Submissions may also be made to the following address: Invent Jeff's Next Flavor, Edy's Grand Ice Cream, 5929 College Ave., Oakland, CA 94618.

FOR THE KIDS

Have your kids recently gone nuts about NASCAR? Do you want to teach them about your favorite sport? "Kid's Guide to NASCAR" was written by Loren Mooney and editors Sherie Holder and Scott Gramling and is available in paperback at $3.99 or in many bookstores. It can also be bought for $3.19 on the Web from Barnes & Noble (www.bn.com). Also available is the "Superstars of NASCAR Activity and Coloring Book," which can be ordered from the same Web site for $10.95.

1. The first part of the document is a title page. It contains the title of the report, the author's name, and the date of the report. The title is "The Effect of the New Tax Law on the Investment Industry". The author is "John Doe". The date is "January 1, 1998".

Weddings

Trivia

Test knowledge of humor writers

By Kevin Carbery
Staff writer

While there are dozens of humor books on store shelves, only a few interest me.

I have no desire to read the allegedly funny writings about cats and lawyers that litter bookstore comedy sections. Tomes about how people talk a certain way in the South or in Minnesota also fail to grab my attention. Most of the works put out by standup comedians are absolutely lame.

So it is a true red-letter day when I find a book of humor that actually makes me laugh. I consider the time I discovered Jean Shepherd to be one of the luckiest moments of my life as an avid reader.

Shepherd, who recently died, knew how to write an entertaining story. While not many people may be familiar with his name, there probably are quite a few who have seen the film "A Christmas Story," which is based on his book "In God We Trust, All Others Pay Cash." Both the book and the movie, which Shepherd narrates, are a hoot.

Other names I look for when I am in a bookstore are Dave Barry and Joe Queenan. Barry is the syndicated columnist known for the phrase "I am not making this up." Queenan is a smart aleck who gets vicious when writing about contemporary movies and life in general. Both of them produce writings that are hilarious.

My all-time favorite book is "A Confederacy of Dunces," written by John Kennedy Toole. I need to warn you that it contains rough language and adult situations, so it is not for everyone. However, to me, it is the funniest thing I have ever read.

I heard about it in an old "Rolling Stone" magazine issue devoted to comedy in which several comedians said it was their choice as their top comedy book and I found out that they were right when I read it. The book can legiti-

Agent 007 James Bond saves the world again

New actor breathes life into old character

By Steve Bryan

Ironically, though, the same actor, Desmond Llewelyn, has played Q in 17 of the films, starting with "From Russia With Love" in 1963. But with the introduction of R, Q's assistant played by John Cleese, this may be Llewelyn's last outing.

ly good fit for this role. He takes what many consider an outdated, stereotypical and sexist character and breathes new life into him in each subsequent film.

"The World is Not Enough," Brosnan's third outing and the 19th installment in the series,

The current James Bond, Pierce Brosnan, is an especial-

For nearly forty years, the cinematic adventures of James Bond have thrilled generations of fans, despite the fact that Ian Fleming's super-spy has been played by six different actors.

Starting with Sean Connery back in 1962 and continuing through such unlikely choices

as George Lazenby and David Niven, Agent 007 has saved the world from destruction countless times with the help of some nifty gadgets created by Q.

Way of Lights display brightens hearts of thousands

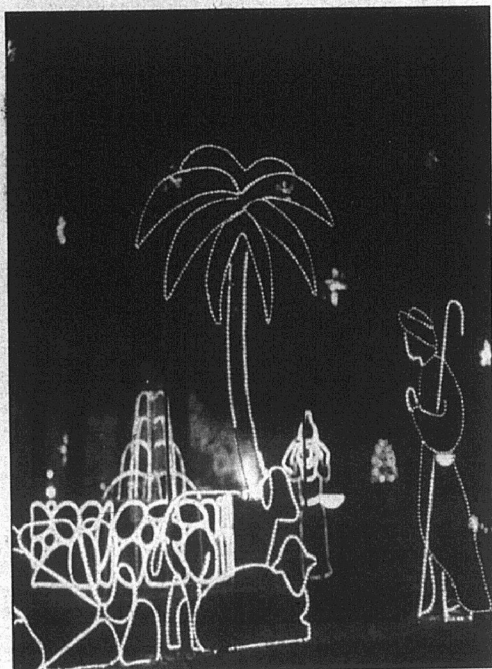

By Christopher England
Staff writer

The Way of Lights has brightened the skies and brought the message of Christ's birth into the hearts of hundreds of thousands of viewers for years and the display will glow strong again this year on the grounds of Our Lady of the Snows Shrine in Belleville as over one million lights shine over a one-and-a-half mile course as they celebrate the "Year of Love".

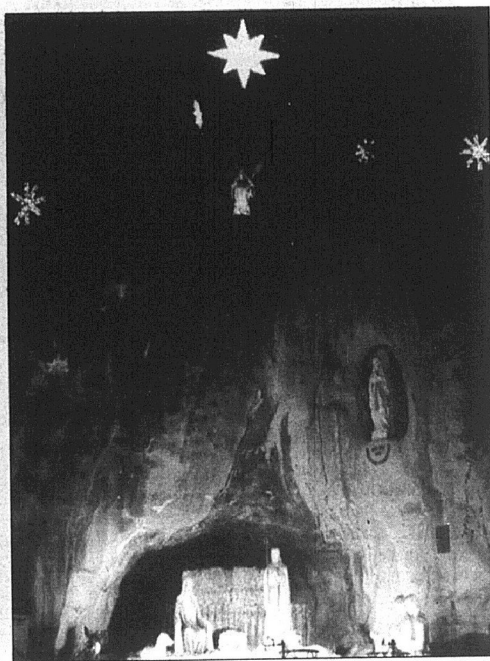

The winter holiday season is a special one at the National Shrine of Our Lady of the Snows, located on Illinois Highway 15, said Jo Kathmann, public relations coordinator for the Shrine.

Kathmann said as visitors drive through this scenic fantasy of light, they wind past electro-art sculptures and life-size figures depicting the Christmas story. They will then find the Visitors Center where designer Christmas trees are artistically displayed in a new motif each year.

"This year's motif coincides with our celebration of the "Year of Love" and will add to

Computer animated 'Toy Story 2' funnier than first

By Steve Bryan

It's difficult, sometimes impossible, for a movie studio to produce a sequel to a hit film that's even half as good or entertaining as the original.

"Back to the Future Part II," for instance, lacked much of the charm and originality that made the first film such a hit. And Paul Reubens, the star of

"Pee-wee's Big Adventure," would probably love to forget its follow up, "Big-Top Pee-wee."

But that's definitely not the case with "Toy Story 2," the much-anticipated sequel to the computer-animated hit of 1995.

Originally slated for a direct-to-video release, this one is even funnier and more enjoyable than the first. Director John Lasseter, who also directed "Toy Story" and "A Bug's Life," proves that the third time really is the charm.

In addition to stars Tom Hanks and Tim Allen returning as the voices of Woody and Buzz Lightyear, the rest of the toy gang returns as well, including John Ratzenberger as Hamm, Wallace Shawn as Rex and Jim Varney as Slinky Dog.

After young Andy, the boy who owns all the toys, heads off to Cowboy Camp, Woody accidentally ends up in the hands of Al McWhiggin (voice of Wayne Knight), a rabid toy collector and the not-so-nice owner of Al's Toy Barn.

Al knows that Woody is actually a rare collectible action figure from an old program called "Woody's Roundup," a television show that was a national phenomenon before its abrupt cancellation.

Al has shelves filled with other "Woody's Roundup" collectibles, including Jessie the cowgirl (voice of Joan Cusack), Stinky Pete the Prospector (voice of Kelsey Grammer) and Bullseye the horse.

Meanwhile, back in Andy's room, Buzz Lightyear and the rest of the gang plot a daring rescue mission to find their missing friend and bring him back where he belongs. Nothing can stop them, not even Buzz Lightyear's arch-enemy, Emperor Zurg.

Unlike "Pokemon," "Toy Story 2" is an animated film that most adults won't mind sitting through, especially with the original music by composer Randy Newman.

"Toy Story 2," rated G, is fresh, funny and one of the best films of the holiday season.

James Bond

007 saves the world

almost seems like a throw-back to those earlier days when "Bond" films were a little spicier and more tongue-in-cheek.

This time, James Bond must face off against Renard (Robert Carlyle), an international terrorist who survived a failed assassination attempt.

Pierce Brosnan and Denise Richards in a scene from "The World Is Not Enough."

With a bullet lodged in his brain that's slowly killing him, Renard feels no sensations at all, not even pain.

And it wouldn't be a "Bond" film without a love interest or two. Agent 007 also must protect the beautiful and vulnerable oil heiress Elektra King (Sophie Marceau) from Renard.

Later on, Bond joins forces with nuclear weapons expert Dr. Christmas Jones (Denise Richards), a beautiful, no-nonsense scientist who almost seems immune to Bond's seductive wit and charm.

Although sometimes hampered by a too difficult to follow plot, "The World Is Not Enough" contains all the classic elements of a great "Bond" film: plenty of gadgets, lots of action and beautiful women. It doesn't disappoint.

"The World Is Not Enough" is rated PG-13.

- mately be called a riot.
- In honor of the great Jean Shepherd, this week's trivia quiz topic is humorous writers.
1. "The Catbird Seat" and "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty" are short stories by what author?
 2. Which standup comedian produced the book "Braindroppings"?
 3. What is the name of the main character in "A Confederacy of Dunces"?
 4. "The Ransom of Red Chief" and "Gifts of the Magi" are works by what author?
 5. Steve Tally's book "Bland Ambition" is about people who have served in what specific public office?
 6. Director John Hughes based his "Vacation" and "Christmas Vacation" movies on pieces he had written for what magazine?
 7. Who wrote the best-selling book "Lake Wobegon Days"?
 8. Which newspaper columnist put out a collection of his pieces called "Sez Who? Sez Me"?
 9. Which satirist wrote the book "Gulliver's Travels"?
 10. Which film director has produced such books as "Without Feathers" and "Getting Even"?
- ANSWERS: 1. James Thurber. 2. George Carlin. This is one of the few books by a comedian that is worth your time. 3. Ignatius J. Reilly, one of the great characters in all of literature. 4. O. Henry, whose real name was William Sydney Porter. 5. Vice presidents of the United States. It is a work of nonfiction but it is funnier than most comedy books. 6. National Lampoon. 7. Garrison Keillor. 8. Mike Royko. Sadly, Mike passed away about a year ago. He was my hero as a writer. 9. Jonathan Swift. 10. Woody Allen.
- Kevin Carbery is affiliated with "The Entertainment and Trivia Show," which airs Sunday nights on KMOX Radio (1120 AM).

Way of Lights has brightened hearts of thousands

Lights one of the most spectacular of its kind in the country.

"We started out 30 years ago with 70,000 lights in our display. Today we're up to one million of them and we add more every year," Kathmann said.

Every part of the Shrine staff from the restaurant, motel and gift shop employees to the church, maintenance, ground crew and electrical staff employees work hard to bring the celebration to life.

The transformation of the grounds takes six weeks and a ground crew of 15 members to do the physical work involved in setting up the display.

Over 350,000 visitors will tour the Shrine grounds and over 700 busloads of visitors are expected.

"We get so many visitors because we were one of the first major light displays in the country. We've become part of the Christmas tradition."

Admission is free, but donations are gratefully accepted.

Although most visitors drive through the display, another unique way to experience the beauty of the display is by horse-drawn carriage. Carriage rides are available through Noble Shire Carriages and reservations and a fee are required.

"People have said, 'The experience is different. It's that intangible something or special experience tied to a spiritual dimension that is shared at the Shrine.' We hope they will take that special feeling back with them and share it with others."
